

University System of Georgia Minimum Admissions Standards to BSN and ASN Nursing Programs: Spring 2007 Survey Results

Introduction

In 2007, the University System of Georgia (USG) prepared pre-licensure nursing students in Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) and Associate of Science in Nursing (ASN) degree programs at 24 institutions. Twelve institutions granted BSN degrees and 12 granted ASN degrees. In Spring 2007, the USG conducted a survey of nursing program deans and directors to collect information on the minimum admissions requirements for students applying to these programs. The survey questions covered the use of college GPA, test scores, and additional requirements for admission into nursing programs in the USG. Each of the nursing programs responded that their admissions standards are higher than the admissions standards to the institution. This paper summarizes the results of the survey.

Grade Point Average

Of 23 institutions responding,<sup>1</sup> all considered a student's college grade point average (GPA) for nursing admission. The specific GPA used varied, with some institutions using the GPA based on all attempted or earned hours, some using the GPA in science courses, and others using various combinations of core courses or courses applicable to the nursing program. Calculating the GPA based on all attempted hours includes grades for any hours registered for and not withdrawn before the course drop deadline. Earned hours includes any hours for courses receiving a grade of a "D" or higher. The responses for each institution are included in Appendix 1.

A majority of the nursing programs assessed a student's overall college GPA based on the hours attempted by the student. Of the 11 BSN degree programs responding, six looked at a student's overall college GPA based on hours attempted. The average minimum requirement for BSN degree programs was 2.74, with values ranging from 2.50 to 3.00 using a 4.0 scale. Nine of the 12 ASN degree programs looked at a student's GPA based on hours attempted. The average minimum requirement for ASN degree programs was 2.25, with values ranging from 2.00 to 2.75.

Several of the institutions assessed a student's overall college GPA based on hours earned as a criterion for admission into the nursing program. Four of the BSN degree programs and four of the ASN degree programs evaluated a student's college GPA based on hours earned. In the BSN programs, the minimum requirement for college GPA based on hours earned ranged from 2.70 to 2.75, with an average of 2.73. In the ASN programs, the minimum requirement ranged from 2.00 to 2.50, with an average minimum college GPA of 2.13.

Another criterion used as an admissions requirement for nursing programs is college GPA in science courses. In the BSN programs, six institutions assess a student's GPA in science courses, while only three ASN programs use this as criterion for admissions. In BSN programs, the GPA minimum requirement for admission into the nursing program ranged from 2.00 to 2.70, with an average minimum of 2.30. In ASN programs, the minimum GPA range was from 2.00 to 2.50, with an average minimum of 2.33.

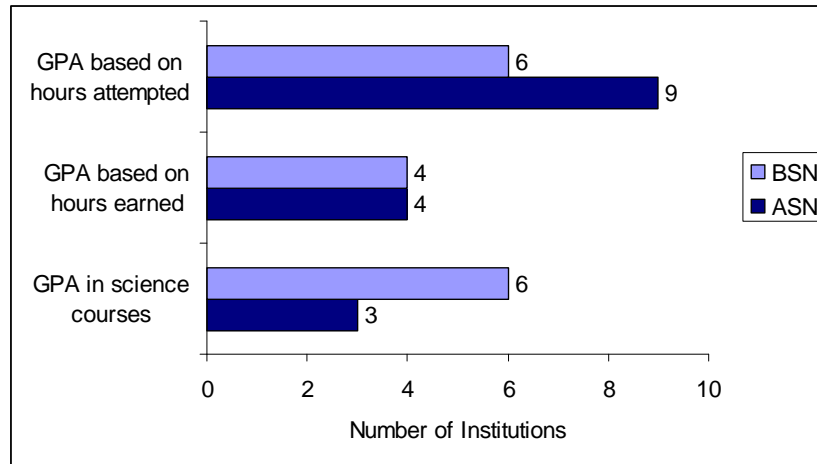

The most widely used GPA criterion for admissions is overall college GPA based on hours attempted. Six of the BSN and nine of the ASN degree programs use this as an admissions criterion. College GPA in science courses is the next most widely used criterion, followed by overall college GPA based on hours earned. Table 1 and Figure 1 summarize the GPA requirements for admissions into BSN and ASN nursing programs in the USG.

*11 out of 12 BSN programs responded to the survey. All 12 ASN programs responded to the survey.

The majority of the institutions used only one GPA (either based on hours attempted, hours earned, or in science courses). Five BSN and six ASN degree programs used only one of the three types of GPA calculations. Four BSN and two ASN nursing programs used two of the three types of GPA calculations, while only one BSN and two ASN degree programs used all three calculations. On the other hand, one BSN program and two ASN programs did not use any of the three types of GPA calculations as an admission criterion.

Test Scores

USG nursing programs use several different test scores as admissions criteria. Eight institutions required SAT Reasoning Test (SAT) scores for admission; 11 institutions required Nurse Entrance Test (NET) scores for admission; five institutions required the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) for foreign students; four institutions required the Test of Essential Academic Skills (TEAS); and one institution required Health Education Systems, Inc (HESI), a test used to predict scores on NCLEX. Appendix 2 provides the results by institution for the SAT, and Appendix 3 provides the results for the NET, TOEFL, and other entrance exams.

The SAT has three separate sections: Writing, Mathematics, and Critical Reading. Each is scored on a scale of 200 to 800. Four ASN and four BSN degree programs require SAT scores as admissions criteria. Of the nursing programs that require SAT scores higher than admission to the college or university, four BSN and two ASN programs assess a student’s score in the SAT Critical Reading score; three BSN and three ASN programs require the SAT Mathematics score; and no BSN and two ASN programs assess the combined SAT score for Critical Reading and Mathematics. The reported minimum scores for the SAT Mathematics section range from 200 to 450, while the reported minimum scores for the SAT Critical Reading section range from 200 to 400. For the combined SAT Critical Reading and Mathematics score, the reported minimum scores range from 850 to 870.

The NET is a computer-based test designed to evaluate student aptitude in seven areas including basic math skills, science reading comprehension, and learning style. Seven BSN programs and four ASN programs required NET scores for admission. The majority used scores from the Reading and Math sections of the test, with one institution using the score from the Composite section of the NET. The minimum required scores for Reading ranged from 43 to 70, and the minimum required scores for Math ranged from 40 to 60. Each section of the NET is based on a 100-point scale. Several institutions used the national average on the NET as the minimum required score for admission.

Several other test scores are used as admissions criteria at some USG institutions. Of the institutions that responded that they do not use NET scores as admissions criteria, two BSN and two ASN programs used TEAS scores, and one ASN institution used a minimum score on the HESI test. Two BSN and five ASN programs did not require scores from any of the NET, TEAS, or HESI tests. Three BSN and two ASN nursing programs used TOEFL scores for non-native English speakers. Figure 2 presents the test requirements for admissions into nursing programs for ASN and BSN degree programs.

Additional Requirements

Institutions have other requirements for admissions into the nursing program. Nursing program deans and directors were asked to indicate whether an interview and/or recommendations are required for admissions to the nursing program. Five institutions required an interview and four required recommendations for nursing program admission. Figure 3 presents these results by degree program level.

Requirements for Interviews and Recommendations

*11 out of 12 BSN programs responded to the survey. All 12 ASN programs responded to the survey.

Several other criteria were identified as being used for admissions to nursing programs at USG institutions. Two institutions required students to pass the Regents' Test before admission to the nursing program. Several others required a minimum GPA in courses required for the nursing degree or a selected GPA based on other specific courses. Other institutions required prospective students to submit essays on topics such as why the student wishes to be a nurse or an essay on a specific health or social issue. One institution also assessed a student's career goals and leadership activities. The responses to these questions by institution are presented in Appendix 4.

Wait Lists

A small percentage of institutions maintained a wait list of qualified applicants for those applicants not accepted in the semester for which they applied for admissions. Five BSN programs and four ASN programs maintained wait lists. Of these, only two ASN programs considered students on the wait list for admissions before new applicants. Institutions that maintained a wait list used them only for the current semester and did not carry the list over to a new term. Table 2 presents the number of programs with wait lists and the range for the number of students on the wait list for Fall 2006. Appendix 5 presents the results by institution.

Admission Timing

The survey asked respondents to indicate when a student may gain admission to the nursing degree program. None of the BSN degree programs and only four of the ASN degree programs admit a nursing student simultaneously with admission to the institution. The remaining 20 institutions indicated that a student must first be admitted to the institution and then be admitted to the nursing program. Of these, two BSN programs and seven of the ASN programs required a student to have completed a specified number of hours at the institution prior to being admitted into the nursing program. The BSN degree programs required anywhere from 36 to 45 hours completed at the institution, while the ASN degree programs required between nine and 21 hours prior to admission into the nursing program. Five of the BSN programs and one of the ASN degree programs required students to have completed the Core Curriculum (Areas A-E) prior to gaining admission to the nursing program. Further, one BSN degree program admitted students following their sophomore year. Figure 4 provides the summary results.

Admissions Timing for Nursing Programs

Other admissions timing requirements used by different nursing programs include completion of certain courses such as Area F of the Core Curriculum or required science courses and/or passing the Regents' Test. The full results from each institution are in Appendix 6.
