CAMPUS SPOTLIGHT: UNIVERSITY OF WEST GEORGIA, ROCKONOMIX
At approximately 9:55 a.m., University of West Georgia President Kyle Marrero and Professor Kim Holder regaled the Board with a presentation on Rockonomix. This student-produced music video parody project, which President Marrero described as a modern-day “School House Rock,” helps motivate student learning by using popular media to reinforce basic economic principles, and enables educators to actively engage students in the learning process. Professor Holder stated the contest was an engaging way to hook students on material and learning, and shared examples of its implementation and success, as well as some video clips of students’ entries and parodies. An audio recording of President Marrero’s and Professor Holder’s presentation is on file with, and available for inspection in, the Office of the Secretary to the Board.

An interruption occurred from 9:41-9:45 a.m.

CHANCELLOR’S REPORT
Chancellor Steve Wrigley gave his report to the Board around 12:47 p.m. The Chancellor stressed his administration will continue to focus on student accessibility and online access, as well as furthering the mission of Complete College Georgia. Dr. Wrigley stated affordability starts with tuition, and noted the Board had kept tuition increases at an average of 2.5 percent over the past five years. He mentioned building on efforts to improve efficiency, increase accountability and control costs, citing as prime example the morning’s actions on consolidation. He thanked the Georgia Legislature for its continued support of the University System of Georgia. The Chancellor also took time to recognize the life and service of the recently-deceased Dr. Harry Downs, Clayton State University founding president, and who also had served the USG as an assistant vice chancellor and acting Chancellor. Finally, Chancellor Wrigley shared with the Board various highlights from, and accomplishments at, System institutions. An audio recording of Chancellor Wrigley’s remarks is on file with, and available for inspection in, the Office of the Secretary to the Board.
